Description

Clement of Rome emphasizes the power and faithfulness of God in raising up those who have served Him faithfully, drawing parallels between God's promise of resurrection and His demonstration of power even through a bird. He highlights scriptural references that speak of resurrection, confession, and the assurance of God's presence, including verses from the Psalms and the book of Job.

Transcript

Do we then deem it any great and wonderful thing for the Maker of all things to raise up again those who have piously served Him in the assurance of a good faith, when even by a bird He shows us the mightiness of His power to fulfil His promise?

For [the Scripture] says in a certain place, "You shall raise me up, and I shall confess to You;" and again, "I laid down, and slept; I awaked, because You are with me;" and again, Job says, "you shall raise up this flesh of mine, which has suffered all these things."
