

George Brunk's 1950 Prediction to Future Mennonites About Modest Dress

by Dean Taylor

Dean Taylor warns the Mennonite Church about the potential consequences of losing its distinctive dress based on George Brunk's 1950 prediction.

Duration: 0:54

Scripture: Romans 12:2, 2 Corinthians 6:17, James 4:4, 1 Peter 2:9

Topics: "Separation From World", "Compromise And Consequences"

Description

This sermon emphasizes the importance of maintaining distinctiveness in faith and practices, warning against the potential consequences of compromising core beliefs. It reflects on the example of those who have strayed from truth and highlights the slippery slope effect of gradual compromise. The speaker predicts that if the Mennonite Church in America abandons its distinctive dress, it may drift towards worldliness and ungodliness.

Transcript

Oh, I would say that one great factor in forming my conviction on this question was the example of those who lost it to see how far away from the truth they went, to be made conscious of the fact there seems to be no stopping place. I'll venture a guess that if the Mennonite Church in America loses its distinctive dress, it will become one of the most worldly and ungodly of denominations. Now that's a guess.

That's a prediction.
