

Opening Words of Grace and Truth

by F.B. Meyer

The sermon emphasizes that blessedness is accessible to all, regardless of circumstances, and can be cultivated by developing the passive qualities of lowliness, meekness, and mourning, or by actively seeking to live out the positive qualities of mercy, purity, peace, and willingness to suffer for Christ.

Scripture: Matthew 5:3

Topics: "Blessedness", "Inner Qualities of Faith"

Description

F.B. Meyer emphasizes that the life of blessedness is accessible to all, regardless of their worldly status or possessions. He explains that true beatitude is not earned through external means but is a state of the heart characterized by humility, meekness, mourning for sin, and a deep hunger for Christ. Meyer highlights the importance of cultivating these dispositions, which lead to mercy, purity, peace, and a willingness to endure for Christ's sake. He points out that Jesus exemplified this blessed life, opening the doors for everyone to enter. Ultimately, the sermon encourages believers to seek the inner qualities that align with the teachings of Christ.

Transcript

Matthew 5:1-9

There are many doors into the life of blessedness. It does not depend on outward possessions, such as worldly goods or high birth. There is no soul of man, however illiterate, lonely, or poor, that may not step suddenly into this life of beatitude and begin to drink of the river that makes glad the city of God. Our Lord lived this life before He described it. He has opened the doors for us. If you cannot enter by the gate of purity, can you not come in by that which is reserved for those who hunger and thirst?

Note the passive side of the blessed life.

To be poor in spirit, that is, to be lowly in one's self-estimate; to be meek, not always interested in one's rights; to mourn for the evils of one's own heart and for the sin and sorrow around; to hunger and thirst after Jesus Christ, the Righteous One. These dispositions do not purchase blessedness, but to cultivate them is to be blessed. On the positive side are mercy, purity, peace and willingness to suffer all things for Christ. Here is 1 Corinthians 13:1-13 anticipated!

Source: <https://sermonindex.net/speakers/fb-meyer/opening-words-of-grace-and-truth/>

Grow in Your Walk with Christ

Listen and read messages that will stir your heart for Christ and point you to deeper repentance and devotion.

- 50,000+ Sermons from speakers past and present
- 3,900+ Classic Christian Books freely readable online
- 1,200+ Bible Translations and Commentaries
- Over 450k forum posts — Join our vibrant online Christian forum

www.sermonindex.net