

A Saviour for Egypt

by George Warnock

God's sovereignty is demonstrated through His ability to use even the evil intentions of men to fulfill His declared purpose.

Scripture: Genesis 50:20, Psalm 33:10-11, Isaiah 55:8-9, Jeremiah 29:11, Romans 8:28

Topics: "God's Purpose", "Divine Sovereignty"

Description

George Warnock emphasizes the story of Joseph, who was chosen by God to save lives during a famine, yet faced betrayal and captivity in Egypt. Despite his brothers' attempts to thwart his dreams, Warnock reassures that God's plans cannot be hindered by human actions. He illustrates how God can transform evil intentions into a part of His divine purpose, ensuring that His promises are fulfilled. The sermon highlights the sovereignty of God in orchestrating events for His glory, even through adversity.

Transcript

Consider the man Joseph. Destined of the Lord to preserve life in the earth in the day of famine. But God deliberately allows him to be sold as a captive into Egypt. His brothers make a deliberate attempt to frustrate the dreams that he had. When God speaks, and we know it is God, how assuring to know that anything man might do to hinder what God has declared... God Himself will carefully weave their evil intentions into the pattern of His purpose, and literally use the evil designs of men to fulfill what He has declared.
