

Our Worship Is Futile Without Unity

by James Jennings

This sermon emphasizes the importance of unity within the church, highlighting the need for each individual to offer themselves as a living sacrifice for spiritual worship that pleases God. It stresses the responsibility of every member to avoid individualism and instead recognize the essentiality of community. The message warns against division within the church, as it hinders genuine worship before God, referencing Matthew 5 and the importance of reconciliation with others before offering gifts to God.

Scripture: Romans 12:4, 1 Corinthians 12:12, Ephesians 4:3, Colossians 3:13, Philippians 2:2

Topics: "Unity in the Church", "Living Sacrifice"

Transcript

...as a church. We want to be able to be unified together, functioning together. All of us offering our bodies as a sacrifice.

And as we do that, it's all going to be a spiritual worship together that is pleasing to God. Do you and I have individual responsibility? Yeah. We have individual responsibility to not be individualistic.

You and I are responsible to do that. We are responsible to recognize our great need for one another. And when a church is divided, our worship is futile before God.

Matthew 5, if you're offering your gift at the altar and you remember your brother has something against you, leave your gift before the altar and go. First, be reconciled to your brother. Then, come and offer your gift.
