

And All the Brethren Which Are With Me.

by Martin Luther

Paul's ministry is supported by the brethren with him, who attest to the truth of his doctrine.

Scripture: Galatians 1:8

Topics: "False Apostles", "Apostolic Authority"

Description

Martin Luther emphasizes the importance of discerning false apostles by highlighting Paul's defense of his ministry against those who seek to discredit it. Paul asserts that his doctrine is divinely true and is supported by the unity of belief among all the brethren with him, even though they are not apostles. This unity in teaching and writing reinforces the authenticity of Paul's message and serves as a powerful rebuttal against the false apostles' accusations.

Transcript

This should go far in shutting the mouths of the false apostles. Paul's intention is to exalt his own ministry while discrediting theirs. He adds for good measure the argument that he does not stand alone, but that all the brethren with him attest to the fact that his doctrine is divinely true. "Although the brethren with me are not apostles like myself, yet they are all of one mind with me, think, write, and teach as I do."
