

Having An Outward Profession but No Inward Reality

by Rex Humbard

This sermon emphasizes the importance of living near to the heart and will of God, highlighting how God looks at the heart while man often focuses on outward appearances. It explores the contrast between external appearances and internal purity, urging listeners to stir up their pure minds in remembrance of God's standards.

Scripture: 1 Samuel 16:7, Proverbs 23:7, Matthew 23:27, 2 Peter 3:1

Topics: "Inner Purity", "God's Heart vs. Human Perception"

Description

This sermon emphasizes the importance of living near to the heart and will of God, highlighting how God looks at the heart while man often focuses on outward appearances. It explores the contrast between external appearances and internal purity, urging listeners to stir up their pure minds in remembrance of God's standards.

Transcript

So that we can live near to the heart of God or away from the heart of God, near to the will of God or away from the will of God. And man looketh on the outward appearance but God looketh on the heart. As a man thinketh so is that man.

Sometimes it's like the scribes and the Pharisees that Jesus looked and said you've washed the outside of the cup, you've whitewashed it, but inside it's full of dead men's bones, rotten to the core, not what it ought to be. And God wants us to stir up our pure minds in way of remembrance.
