Description

Thomas Brooks emphasizes the profound value of a pure heart over mere intellectual knowledge, asserting that holiness is the true treasure that leads to a relationship with God. He explains that a heart filled with holy affections surpasses a mind filled with mere curious ideas, and that true fulfillment comes from a life of holiness. Brooks concludes that those who possess a pure heart are destined for heaven, as their lives reflect the purity and holiness that God desires.

Transcript

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God."

Matthew 5:8

A pure heart is better than a golden head. A heart full of holy affections is infinitely beyond a head full of curious notions. There is no jewel like that of holiness.

He who has holiness has all--and he who lacks that has nothing at all. Heaven is for that man, and that man is for heaven, who has clean hands and a pure heart, whose holy life is attended with heart purification.
