

(Clip) A Look Into God's Courtroom

by Tim Conway

This sermon delves into the profound concept of God justifying the ungodly through Christ, where despite our guilt and ungodliness, God declares us not guilty and righteous. It explores 2 Corinthians 5:21, illustrating how God made Christ, who was sinless, to be sin for us sinners so that we could become the righteousness of God in Christ.

Scripture: Romans 4:5, 2 Corinthians 5:21, Romans 3:22, Philippians 3:9, 1 Peter 2:24

Topics: "Justification by Faith", "The Righteousness of God"

Transcript

This is for the person who believes in Him who justifies the ungodly. Now that's just, see that's where this thing is so beautiful. He justifies the ungodly.

Wait a second, you've got an ungodly person. Do you recognize what justify means? Justify means God himself looks and says not guilty and it says he's ungodly. He's ungodly, he's guilty.

And God says not guilty, not ungodly. How? What happens? Okay, now you got to turn really quickly over to 2 Corinthians chapter 5. 2 Corinthians chapter 5, the very last verse. This is one of the glorious verses on the righteousness of God as well.

Look at it here, 2 Corinthians 5:21. Here's what happens, for our sake, that's the sinner. He, that's God the Father, made Christ to be sin who knew no sin so that in Christ we might become the righteousness of God. You see, the righteousness of God is something we become.

It's for us. How did it happen? It didn't just happen. God did not just sweep those sins under the rug.

He doesn't just say to an ungodly man, righteous. No, no, no. That righteousness has to come from somewhere.

You see what happens? There's Christ. He comes into the courtroom. God takes our sin and makes him to be sin.

He who knew no sin, he has no sin. And now we're free of it. And we are the righteousness of God in him.

This is it. This is the truth.
