

(Clip) Live So As To Be Missed

by Tim Conway

This sermon emphasizes the importance of being a giver rather than a taker, highlighting the impact that givers have on the church and the world. It contrasts the legacy of givers like Dorcas (Tabitha) with the lack of impact from those who are primarily takers or depleters in their interactions. The message encourages a shift from a mindset of stealing to one of giving, recognizing the significant role that givers play in leaving a lasting and positive influence.

Duration: 1:31

Scripture: Acts 9:36, Luke 6:38, Proverbs 11:25, 2 Corinthians 9:7

Topics: "Generosity", "Impact of Giving"

Do you think how precious givers are? I think giving people are the most... Who was it? McShane? We sang one of his songs. I think it was he that said that you should so live your life so as to be missed when you are gone. And there is nobody who is so missed as the giver.

And you think of Dorcas, Tabitha, when she died. You know what's sad to say? There are some people within these four walls that if you were to die right now, you wouldn't be missed a whole lot because you're a taker. You're a depleter.

You're a giver. And your life is not heavily characterized by being a giver. Givers are missed.

Givers impact this world more than anyone else. Givers. How precious they are to the church.
