

You Cant Admire Jesus From A Distance And Encounter Him

by Tim Conway

This sermon emphasizes that encountering Jesus will always lead to a personal challenge and transformation. Merely being a spectator or admirer from a distance is not enough; true revelation of Jesus demands a response that goes deep into the core of one's being, urging individuals to move beyond passive observation to active engagement with Him.

Scripture: Matthew 16:24, James 1:22, Luke 9:23, Hebrews 4:12, Philippians 3:10

Topics: "Personal Transformation", "Active Engagement with Jesus"

Description

Transcript

The revelation of Jesus to you. It will always challenge you about you. That's what's happening here.

You Greeks really want to see me? Anyone here really want to see Him? Well, know this, you know what He's saying here? You cannot be a spectator. No sitting on the sideline here. You can't simply look.

None of that. A sight of Jesus will challenge you to the depths. You Greeks really want to see me? Let's see if you really want to see me.

There may be more involved than just standing at a distance and admiring me or my words.
